Welcome

The Hon Steven Marshall MP Premier of South Australia

The South Australian Government is a great supporter of the arts – an industry that showcases our culture, creativity, innovation and bold ideas.

Since 1998, local, interstate and international audiences have delighted in the visionary work presented by talented artists at the South Australian Living Artists (SALA) Festival.

This winter, we get to enjoy nearly 700 exhibitions, tours, workshops and displays showing at over 500 venues across the state, including regional South Australia.

I'm proud of the festival's inclusivity. There are now even more bilingual tours on offer and more schools are participating in varying ways. It is still the biggest open access visual arts festival in the world.

As you peruse this program, I encourage you to immerse yourself in multiple experiences and try something new. I have every confidence that you will find something to learn or marvel at.

Congratulations to all participating artists and the organisers for what will be another successful year.

Newscorp Editorial Director SA, WA, NT & TAS

Like the news industry, the SALA Festival is all about seeing the bigger picture: viewing an ever-changing landscape through an innovative mix of media. This takes both traditional forms – such as paint, sculpture, photography and print – and exciting new formats including digitally generated imagery, video and even virtual reality.

Just as the news industry is undertaking massive change to reach its audience through different platforms, so artists are utilising the latest materials and emerging technologies to produce exciting works that speak to a 21st century community.

The Advertiser is proud to have been associated with SALA as the event's major sponsor for more than a decade and support the state's artists in its various publications.

Through the pages of The Advertiser, SA Weekend magazine, the Sunday Mail, The Messenger and their online counterparts, we take artists' images and their stories from the walls of galleries and into the homes and hands of our readers.

In judging and awarding The Advertiser Contemporary Art Prize, I also gain an insight to how South Australia's most imaginative and creative forces view the society we live in, and the issues which confront it. Make the most of the month of August to immerse yourself in the kaleidoscope of experiences that is SALA, discover new venues and meet the local artists behind the images.

Nicholas Linke Chair, SALA Festival

Welcome to the 22nd SALA Festival which has become the biggest open access visual arts festival in the world. This year the Festival will comprise nearly 700 exhibitions and events across the State, including works by new, emerging, established and internationally recognised South Australian artists. Of course the Festival would not be possible without the valuable contributions of so many. On behalf of the SALA Board I wish to thank the State Government through Arts South Australia, our other partners, sponsors and venues, our incredible staff and volunteers whose tireless work brings the Festival together, and our incredible and committed audience of more than 850,000 who each year celebrate SA's living artists.

Most importantly I wish to thank the more than 8,000 incredible artists whose diverse voices will this year make up the SALA Festival.

I encourage you to go outside of your comfort zone this year – plan to see a few more exhibitions - and enjoy the incredible talent of South Australia's living artists in exhibitions across the State.

Kate Moskwa CEO, SALA Festival

Art connects people with ideas, emotions and stories and has a unique capacity to communicate the human experience. The exhibitions and events in the South Australian Living Artists Festival are a reflection of our State's culture and communities.

SALA is celebrated in galleries, restaurants and bars, along main streets, and in studios across the State. The program invites you to discover venues and artists in your neighbourhood and beyond, to seek out something different and make new connections. There are numerous ways you can search the program

- including finding exhibitions near you if you're using a mobile device. If you're looking for guidance we have walking, scooter, and bus tours, bilingual tours in Mandarin, Hindi, Gujarati and Punjabi as well as participatory tours so you can have a go at making art.

South Australians can be proud that we host the world's largest open access visual arts festival, truly a reflection of the State's engagement with culture and an openness to see the world from another's point of view. There are over 8,000 artists participating in this year's Festival, each with their own distinct perspective; experience the world through the work of South Australia's living artists.

Where Art Meets Life: Assessing the Impact of Dark Mofo, a New Midwinter Festival in Australia

5:30pm - 6:30pm

In the context of the South Australian Living Artists Festival, Adrian Franklin considers the success of another midwinter festival, its social, cultural and economic impact, and how well it integrates its local community into its programming. In order to understand activation in contemporary cities you need to understand why and how they were de-activated in the first place.

Louise Haselton: Act natural

by Gillian Brown, Leigh Robb, Jenna McKenzie

Louise Haselton is an outstanding South Australian artist of international repute. Her alluring artworks offer glimpses of the curious inner lives of everyday and overlooked things.

With a witty reverence for the objects and materials she engages, Haselton explores the communicative possibilities of weight, balance and form within her predominantly sculptural works. Her practice is unexpected, unconventional, and exemplary of an artist especially attuned to the matters which surround us. Louise Haselton: Act natural is a compendium of Haselton's works to date including illustrated essays chronicling the inspirations, influences and ideas behind her extraordinary practice of the last twenty-five years.

The SALA series of books showcasing the works of South Australian living artists was initiated by the SALA Inc. Board and is published by Wakefield Press with the assistance of the Government of South Australia. This is the twenty-first book in the series, following Annette Bezor: A Passionate Gaze, Richard Grayson; Kathleen Petyarre: Genius of Place, Christine Nicholls and Ian North; James Darling: Instinct, Imagination, Physical Work, Daniel Thomas; Nick Mount: Incandescence, Margot Osborne; Ian W. Guided by her conversations and cherished interaction with patients and families living with dementia during her residency, Lee Walter has created a body of work representing the essence of the time she has spent with each individual. This work uses the piano as a metaphor for the fragility, beauty and dignity of the human body.The artists have attempted to rehabilitate a rather neglected piano. In its former state the piano presented as uncared for and unloved. The artist intent is to rehabilitate the piano physically and metaphorically, to restore its dignity as an instrument capable of affording aesthetic pleasure both as a visual object, and as a sounding object.

The efficacy of medical treatment is primarily attributed to surgical and / or pharmaceutical interventions. It is, however, widely accepted that positive patient outcomes can also be attributed to inactive treatments, such as inert drugs and the psychological support afforded to the patient via 'the placebo effect'. Placebo explores the potential that knowing a treatment has an organic, plant-based origin makes it more acceptable, tolerable and, possibly, more efficacious.

My latest body of work demonstrates a deep fascination with the Australian bush and desert landscape. The complexity and variety of plant life intermixed with the vibrancy of colours is an ideal opportunity for me to observe the beauty of colours in nature. Despite overwhelming desolation in some rural areas, the landscape evokes a deep feeling of energy, life and beauty.

Ghost objects

In this collaboration between Guildhouse and AGSA, Honor Freeman 'ghosts' the collection. Working primarily in porcelain, Freeman harnesses the mimetic qualities of clay through the magic of slip casting whereby porcelain casts echo original objects. Liquid slip becomes solid, thereby becoming a memory of a past form – a ghost object. Freeman explores the residual stories (real and imagined) that orbit around the AGSA collection in objects of ritual, mourning and loss.

Art in the Arcade

A diverse selection of work from four Adelaidebased artists will be exhibited amongst the buzz of the Central Market Arcade. The delicate drawings by Barbara Chalk contrast the vibrant and unconventional paintings by James Smith. Intimate street photography by John Staines complements the refined portraits and scenes painted by Aleksandra Kucanski-Durmanovic. My hand built terracotta and stoneware clay Vessels reflect significant devastating changes to Australia's natural biodiversity since the colonisation of Australia. The vessels are intended to inform and encourage concern for the crisis facing our natural environment. In a little more than 200 years of colonisation, our activity has resulted in over 600 threatened animal and plant species. I hope to engender responsibility in the viewer for the preservation of our natural habitat.

Like Fermoy itself, discernment and association, as well as surprise, suggestion and curiosity are at play. Disguise and detection are also afoot, for distributed amongst Fermoy's treasures my eclectic contributions might appear in open view or reside quietly in odd corners. Some works speak to objects in the collection, others uninvolved with such dialogue.

Equipoise

Drew Spangenberg's blown glasswork is elegant whimsical and funky. He executes challenging pieces with integrity and confidence. His fine glass vessels compliment each other in careful compositions that harmoniously juxtapose form and colour. As a musician he feels a connection between playing music and the rhythm and co-ordination required in the glass blowing process. Arranging glass vessels into complimentary compositions as he would, a piece of music.

Other Homes and Gardens

In this hugely ambitious new exhibition, South Australian artist Nicholas Folland imagines a world in which cosy notions of domestic security are thrillingly destabilised. Combining installation with kinetic sculpture, 'Other Homes and Gardens' inverts the idea of the Anthropocene, depicting humankind at the mercy of dangerous and implacable natural forces. Simultaneously uncanny and darkly humors, this never before seen exhibition is not to be missed.

Experiences from a WA Residency

What do two different artists see when they view the same landscape? A unique, joint artist in residency programme in Beveley WA, affords multidisciplanary artist Catherine Fitz-Gerald and lyrical realism artist Ursula Kiessling the opportunity to investigate water, its absence and excess. They explore environmental and climate change issues, from rising salinity in the wheatbelt manmade monoecosystems, across the Nullabor, to the Queensland flood waters filling the great Kati Thanda-Lake Eyre. Drop in, kettle's on!

When it comes to understanding the impact of singleuse plastics on our planet - what we see is just the tip of the iceberg. Walkerville Council and East Waste are joining forces with the local community to create an installation called 'Tip of the Iceberg'. Using single-use plastics collected from local schools and shops, this project examines our reliance on single-use plastics through a creative lens. The Scene is the Seen

This exhibition, performance and critical writing event of emerging and mid-career practitioners explores the potent relationship between text and art. Responding to a series of works from notable artists and theorists: each exhibitor will conceive a work that transforms meaning and translation whilst echoing the principles of the original text. Each piece of writing touches on themes of ongoing critical and artistic concern – melancholia, displacement, identity, culture.

Placebo

The efficacy of medical treatment is primarily attributed to surgical and/or pharmaceutical interventions. It is, however, widely accepted that positive patient outcomes can also be attributed to inactive treatments, such as inert drugs and the psychological support afforded to the patient via 'the treatment': 'the placebo effect'. Placebo explores the potential that knowing a treatment has an organic, plant-based origin makes it more acceptable, tolerable and, possibly, more efficacious.

NEW WORK

Throughout the past year, I have journeyed to different parts of Australia. This includes Adelaide, Sydney Melbourne, and Canberra. It was, however, in the outer regions of these cities that I discovered and photographed some truly marvellous things. This includes 'The Tunnel' Queenscliff (NSW), and the mysterious Lake Barmera (SA). The aim has been to draw attention to the uniqueness of these things making the ordinary "Extraordinary"!

Rebecca Edwards Open Studio

Rebecca Edwards is hosting an open studio of her works on paper, sculptures from found objects, miniatures and mosaics. Come and chat with the artist about sustainable living, paper-making, mosaicing, dollhouses, and other matters dear to her heart. Rebecca has had solo exhibitions in Tokyo, New Zealand and Australia. Her art practice is informed by a childhood in Papua New Guinea, Japan and Nauru and by a desire to make art from discarded materials.

f/64 Landscape Photography in the Digital Age

'Group f/64' were landscape photographers formed by Ansel Adams in the thirties. The term f/64 carried some meaning. It meant large format cameras and implied disciplined photography on a tripod. Photographs taken by the f/64 group reflected outcomes of exhaustive location research and disciplined technique. The extreme contrast of light in the landscape required careful control of tonal range and darkroom technique. Ron Langman pays homage to this group in an exhibition of monochrome landscapes

Sally Parnis is interested in the idea of drawing as an accumulation of marks that measure time. The drawings are made by her finger on an iPad. They are shared with the viewer both as images printed on metal and drawings re-lived as moving images. This work was made on site at Hentley Farm's "F-Block" vineyard as part of an ongoing collaboration between Hentley Farm Wines and Adelaide Central School of Art.

COLOURS OF MINDFULNESS

My exhibition consists of the many types of artwork I have created by painting with coloured bees wax using an iron to glide over glossy card, perspex, tile and timber to create different effects. I use encaustic wax as a healing and meditating tool, enabling me to drift into an unknown world of multiple bright colours to create unique abstracts, land and seascapes.
